

Orbithicism by Joseph D. Smith

Orbithicism is the religious philosophy and way of life revolved around the idea that the Orbits of celestial bodies have an impact on our bodies, along with our minds. The Orbits themselves have polarities; the inner-projection of the unconscious (subconscious) mind, and the projection outward from our conscious minds.

Orbithicism is the path to discover how to bring these polarities together and to form a unity of power, from within all, and from the reality of all! We strive to understand how the polarity of the unconscious relates to the conscious. If we could understand this, then we would have absolute control over our own realities, and we would be able to project outward what is inside of us!

And finally, Orbithicism's goal is to understand our reality, by the way our celestial bodies orbit in outerspace, and even here, in our own bodies. Our beliefs about the afterlife vary, as the individual is free to seek for themselves. We believe in personal responsibility, without the need for a government to tell us how to live responsibly.
